The Chemical Company Releases Mobile Application for iOS and Google Play App Stores

“The View from Jamestown: Mobile App” will feature market news, analysis, pricing updates, product information and more pertaining to the chemical industry.

Jamestown, RI – This week, The Chemical Company (TCC) released its own branded mobile application, “The View from Jamestown: Mobile App.” The app is free to download and includes market analysis, pricing updates, product information and more produced by The Chemical Company's internal marketing team. Weekly pricing information and analysis is provided courtesy of PetroChem Wire.

The app is published, and available free to download on both the Apple iOS and Google Play app stores by searching “The View from Jamestown” or “The Chemical Company.”

The Chemical Company is committed to being more than a product and service provider. TCC strives to be one of the most valuable assets, by being a partner in all business operations.

Pricing trends, market news and analysis, events and conferences, and much more is available through the app, along with additional features and capabilities in the months and years to come.

In a developing mobile-first, and the mobile-only technological world, TCC is committed to being the first-to-market and best-in-market across technology platforms, bringing the highest value, and easiest communication to our customers and business partners.
